Ruby master - Bug #13670
[BUG] Bus Error at 0xefce7b (armv7l) (ruby 2.3.4p301)
06/22/2017 06:02 PM - mrohnstock (Mathias Rohnstock)

Status: Closed
Priority: Normal
Assignee:
Target version: ruby 2.3.4p301 (2017-03-30 revision 58214) [armv7l-linux-eabihf]
Backport: 2.2: UNKNOWN, 2.3: UNKNOWN, 2.4: UNKNOWN

Description
On using the library bootsnap the error occurred (see attachment). The developer of the library suggested to report this directly to the ruby-devs, as it looks like a bug in core. Related issue on GitHub: https://github.com/Shopify/bootsnap/issues/67.

Thanks :).

GitLab is experiencing this with ruby 2.3.3p222 (2016-11-21 revision 56859) [armv6l-linux-eabihf]

Could you try trunk or Ruby 2.4.1 and provide how to reproduce the issue?
I have armv7l-linux-eabihf environment and I'll try it.

#3 - 12/19/2017 12:30 AM - splitice (Mathew Heard)
Can confirm this occurs with 2.4.1, just install bootsnap and try and launch a rails application.
Tested on a H3 (armv7l)

#4 - 04/11/2018 10:22 PM - fig (Phil Ferne)
Can confirm this still happening in 2.5.1

ruby 2.5.1p57 (2018-03-29 revision 63029) [armv7l-linux-eabihf]
bootsnap (1.3.0)
Rails 5.2.0

Rails adds bootsnap to a new app by default as of version 5.2.0
any call to rails (rails console, rails server, rails credentials:edit, etc) produces bootsnap-1.3.0/lib/bootsnap/compile_cache/iseq.rb:18: [BUG] Bus Error at 0x55ae31f7

Temporary fix for Rails >= 5.2.0

edit config/boot.rb comment out or remove the following line:

require 'bootsnap/setup' # Speed up boot time by caching expensive operations.

RubyVM::InstructionSequence#to_binary and RubyVM::InstructionSequence.load_from_binary had bugs around word alignments.
I think the trunk has been fixed, couldn't you try it?

Disregard the failed tests above - second build installed okay.
Still hitting the bug very occasionally, but finding it very hard to reproduce reliably.

Issue still exists with 2.5.1
The error message has changed however, it now crashes.
