

Ruby master - Bug #16805

Coroutine's license is unclear

04/21/2020 10:23 AM - shyouhei (Shyouhei Urabe)

Status: Assigned
Priority: Normal
Assignee: ReiOdaira (Rei Odaira)
Target version:
ruby -v:	Backport: 2.5: UNKNOWN, 2.6: UNKNOWN, 2.7: UNKNOWN

Description

Files under coroutine/ start like this:

 * This file is part of the "Coroutine" project and released under the MIT License.

The problem is, there is no definition of "the MIT License" throughout the entire project.

ioquatix \(Samuel Williams\) can you add your terms somewhere inside of LEGAL? There are several other materials also under the MIT license. You can follow how they are listed up.

History

Sure.

#2 - 05/14/2020 10:51 AM - ioquatix (Samuel Williams)

Are you happy adding the following to LEGAL:

coroutine::

Where specified, these files are licensed under the {MIT License}[rdoc-label:label-MIT+License].

#3 - 05/18/2020 12:38 AM - shyouhei (Shyouhei Urabe)

Looks good to me.

odaira \(takumi odaira\) Can you confirm/are you okay for your ppc64 implementation to be released under the MIT License?

#6 - 08/17/2020 08:48 AM - ioquatix (Samuel Williams)

- Assignee changed from ioquatix (Samuel Williams) to ReiOdaira (Rei Odaira)

I have merged the license changes as discussed, but we still need to check the license of the code contributed by @ReiOdaira.
